

Contents

Acknowledgements	6
Authors' note	6
8	Introduction	92	The pilot's view
Classic aircraft preservation	18	Flying the Bf109G: Dave Southwood	95
What's in a name?	21	Comparing the Bf109E-4 with the Bf109G-2 (Trop): Flt Lt Charlie Brown	99
22	The Bf109 Story	Luftwaffe Bf109 pilot: Eduard Isken	102
Variations on a theme	28	Flying the Bf109G: Capt Eric 'Winkle' Brown RN	103
Foreign employment and manufacture	37	Start-up and shut-down	105
Bf109 facts and figures	44	108	The engineer's view
Bf109 weaponry	45	From my perspective: Paul Blackah	110
Bf109 fighter aces	50	Main fluids and pressures	124
Combat comparisons	51	Flying controls: range of movements	136
Power for the Bf109	54	Servicing the Bf109	155
58	Restore to flight	156	Appendices
Aircraft condition before restoration	60	Airworthy Bf109s and Buchóns	156
Repair, recondition or replace?	60	Glossary and translations	159
How do refurbished Bf109s differ from their original state?	60	Imperial and metric equivalents of weapons calibres and weights	160
Rebuilding the Emil: Steve Vizard	66	Useful contacts	161
70	The Black 6 Story	162	Index
History of Black 6	72
Power for Black 6	76
Daimler-Benz DB605A	77
What can go wrong?	78
80	The owner's view
Acquiring a Bf109	82
Case History 1
'Black 6': Russ Snadden	83
Case History 2 Owning and flying a Buchón: Cliff Spink	88
Case History 3 Teutonic threesome: German-owned Buchóns	91

OPPOSITE: A Luftwaffe pilot climbs down from his Messerschmitt Bf109E of Jagdgeschwader 53 'Pik-As' (Ace of Spades) in Northern France in 1940.
Arthur Grimm/Ullstein Bild/TopFoto